John Talabot / OR

John Talabot occupies a fairly unique position in the current electronic landscape. A space he has carved himself by staying true to an artistic vision that is broad in its scope and specific in its convictions.

His open minded approach to making, collecting and playing music allows him to be just as comfor table on the main stage of a great summer festival as in a small local club, earning the following of both the occasional fan and the demanding connoisseur along the way. Today, he keeps pushing the envelope, following instincts rather than stratagems. To do so he favours a continuous dialogue with like-minded ar tists. His alliance with A xel Boman in Talaboman has just bir thed a new label and his LostScripts duo with Pional keeps delivering sparkles of brilliance, but those are just two of the several joint projects he currently has in play. Some might be announced soon, some might never see the light of day, but most iampor tant: they keep ideas flowing.

A need of discovery that also defines his tireless search of music, making him one of those rare DJs that can effor tlessly juxtapose efficacy, risk and revelation. His all nighter sets are hard to forget, with notable examples in venues and festivals such as Sónar, Pickle Factory, Moog or the Kelvingrove Ar tGallery & Museum in Glasgow. Moreover playing music, his curational endeavours keep expanding, having commissioned stages in festivals such as Primavera Sound or Nuits Sonores or bringing his Hivern Discs label's nights to clubs around Europe. In many ways, his work with the clabel epitomises his understanding of music: rigorous and committed, but constantly dynamic and open to the unexpected. Because if John Talabot has made something clear over the last decade, is that growth always comes from the will to keep exploring.

John Talabot occupe une place à part dans le paysage des musiques électroniques, fidèle à une vision artistique aussi ouverte qu'affirmée.

Guidé par son instinct et une soif constante de découverte, il repousse les frontières musicales, aussi à l'aise sur les grandes scènes de festivals que dans l'intimité des clubs. DJ exigeant et audacieux, il conjugue efficacité sur le dancefloor, prise de risque et découvertes inattendues.

À travers ses collaborations avec Axel Boman (Talaboman) et Pional (LostScripts), son label Hivern Discs et ses activités de programmation, il cultive une approche libre, exigeante et toujours en mouvement, portée par une volonté constante d'explorer de nouveaux territoires sonores.
